Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

7. Claims 1-26 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Buckley et al. U.S.

Patent 6,446,871 in view of Walsh et al. U.S. Patent 6,144,848.

8. Referring to claims 1, and 14, Buckley reference disclose providing a triggering device having a unique code associated therewith, the unique code associated with a remote location (Fig. 5, portal server (208)) on a network (Fig. 5, internet (106)) of the source of the web page (Fig. 5, content provider (214, or 216)); transmitting the unique code from the triggering device to an interface system (Fig. 5, ASCII string (200) from scanning device to client pc port (202)), the interface system disposed on the network at a triggering location (Fig. 5, from client pc (104) to internet (106)); retrieving location information associated with the unique code from a database, the location information corresponding to the location of the web page at the remote location on the network (Fig. 9, col. 11, lines 18-26 (map barcode with dB supported by content provider (214)); in response to retrieving the location information, connecting the interface system to the remote location, and presenting the web page corresponding to the location information of the remote location to the user via the interface system (col. 11, lines 6-26); however, Buckley reference fail to teach the triggering device having a unique code that uniquely identifies the triggering device and the unique code having no location information therein.

Walsh reference disclose a device having a unique code that uniquely identifies the device the unique code having no location information therein (col. 26 lines 23-56).

It would have been obvious to one of the ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention was made to incorporate Walsh's teaching into Buckley's method to use the unique code to uniquely identifies the device and provide a rapid, secure and error-free format to the host server.

9. Referring to claims 2, and 15, Buckley reference disclose the triggering device in the step of providing is a portable wireless transponder (Fig. 5, infrared or radio frequency port (202), col. 5, lines 49-55; and col. 7, lines 20-35).

10. Referring to claims 3, and 16, Buckley reference disclose the transponder has the unique code stored therein in a non-volatile memory (col. 6, lines 14-15; and col. 6, lines 62-64).

11. Referring to claims 4, and 17, Buckley reference disclose the unique code in the step of providing is uniquely associated with the web page (col. 8, lines 60 through col. 9, lines 7).

12. Referring to claims 5, and 18, Buckley reference disclose the interface system in the step of transmitting comprises a receiver operatively connected to a computer, the receiver for receiving a triggering signal having the unique code contained therein (Fig. 5, serial/IR/USB (202)).

13. Referring to claims 6, and 19, Buckley reference disclose the user manually enables the triggering device to transmit the unique code in the step of triggering (col. 9, lines 65 through col. 10, lines 6).

14. Referring to claims 7, and 20, Buckley reference disclose the step of retrieving location information further comprises the step of matching the unique code with the location information of the database (col. 10, lines 32-39).

15. Referring to claims 8, and 21, Buckley reference disclose the database in the step of retrieving is local to the interface system (Figures 4, and 5).

Art Unit: 2143

16. Referring to claims 9, and 22, Buckley reference disclose the database in the step of retrieving is located at an intermediary location on the network (col. 10, lines 31-35; Fig. 4, content databases 114,116, and 118)

17. Referring to claims 10, and 23, Buckley reference disclose the step of retrieving location information from the intermediary location further comprises the step of appending to the unique code routing information which defines the location of the intermediary location on the network such that: the unique code is transmitted to the intermediary location in accordance with the appended routing information (col. 10, lines 32-39).

18. Referring to claims 11, and 24, Buckley reference disclose the step of connecting is performed using a browser program (col. 10, lines 8-12).

19. Referring to claims 12, and 25, Buckley reference disclose the steps of retrieving, connecting and displaying are performed automatically in response to the step of transmitting (Fig. 4; col. 10, lines 32-39).

20. Referring to claims 13, and 26, Buckley reference disclose the step of presenting comprises displaying the web page to the user via a display operatively connected to the interface system (Fig. 9; col. 11, lines 6-26).
